Extended Assignment Accommodation

The accommodation of “Extended Assignment” is prescribed to support limitations of an unpredictable nature due to disability. The management of a disability related limitation(s) is essential to a student's ability to successfully complete each course.

While accommodation does not guarantee success, the accommodation provides equal access to curriculum assignments for students to demonstrate their knowledge.

The accommodation of “Extended Assignment”:

- is a shared responsibility between the University (AEC), the instructor, and the student.
- individual extension timeframe is determined by AEC on a case-by-case basis.
- supports curriculum requirements.
- applies ONLY to independently completed, non-group written assignments.
- could affect and be implemented differently for each course.
- begins the day it is requested, and it is not retroactive; the accommodation remains in effect once requested and through the University’s designated final exam period.
- all work must be completed by the last day before grades are due.

The accommodation of “Extended Assignment” consists of 3 steps:

Step 1: Request of Extended Assignment accommodation
Step 2: Review of course syllabi
Step 3: Meeting with each instructor

Student failure to engage in their responsibility may lead to the “Extended Assignment” accommodation not being executed effectively.

Step 1

Students must request accommodation as soon as possible when first prescribed, and at the start of each academic term thereafter. Accommodations should be requested well before the need to utilize the accommodation arises.

Step 2

Each semester students must review individual course syllabus thoroughly. Course syllabi explain the nature of each assignment. The following questions must be answered to determine if the accommodation can be implemented for each assignment:
• Are assignments independently completed, i.e. non-group?
• Do assignments depend on completion of a previous assignment which impacts the next assignment?
• How much time is there between assignments?
• Will solutions be posted? If so, how soon after the assignment is submitted?

Assignments turned in late, after the coursework extension time frame, will be subject to grading as a late assignment.

Step 3

Students MUST meet with each instructor to discuss the accommodation. This conversation must take place as soon as possible following the request, and well before the need to utilize the accommodation arises.

The following questions must be discussed with each instructor:

• Does the instructor have any concerns about the extended deadline? If so what?
• Will the full-time extension be feasible and reasonable for all assignments? If not, why and for what assignments? Is there an alternate time frame that will support curriculum requirements?
• Are there any assignments for which the accommodation will not be reasonable? If so why?
• How will the instructor prefer to be notified when the accommodation is needed?
• How will the assignment be submitted? i.e.: canvas upload, email, etc. Selected submission method will apply for due dates even if the date falls on a weekend. All work must be completed by the last day before grades are due. In the event a student is unable to submit their assignment by this date the student can request an INC from their instructor.

Students must contact AEC immediately regarding the appropriateness of this accommodation if concerns arise with instructors.

Your agreement to this E-Agreement is an understanding of the conditions and responsibilities pertaining to this accommodation.

Notice for Student Absences Accommodation

The accommodation of “Notice of Student Absences” is prescribed to support limitations of an unpredictable nature due to disability. The management of a disability related limitation(s) is essential to a student’s ability to successfully complete each course. The accommodation does not guarantee success, but provides equal access to curriculum allowing students to demonstrate their knowledge.

The accommodation of “Notice of Student Absences:”

• is not an allowance to miss unlimited class meetings that could affect earning a grade.
• is a shared responsibility between the University (AEC), the instructor, and the student.
• supports curriculum requirements.
• could affect and be implemented differently for each course.
begins the day it is requested, and it is not retroactive; the accommodation remains in effect once requested and through the University’s designated final exam period.

The accommodation of “Notice of Student Absences” consists of 3 steps:

Step 1: Request of Notice of Student Absences accommodation
Step 2: Review of course syllabi
Step 3: Meeting with each instructor

Student failure to engage in their responsibility may lead to the “Notice of Student Absences” accommodation not being executed effectively and in a timely manner.

Step 1

Students must request accommodation as soon as possible when first prescribed, and at the start of each academic term thereafter. Accommodations should be requested well before the need to utilize the accommodation arises.

Step 2

Each semester students must review individual course syllabus thoroughly. Course syllabi explains the level of engagement and participation required for each course. The following questions must be answered for each course:

- What type of participation is required? E.G.: lecture, guest speaker, classmate presentations, group work, etc.
- What is the intended goal/learning outcome (LO) of class participation?
- What are the allowed number of absences stated on the course syllabus?
- How have your disability limitations been affecting you recently?
- How often could your limitations affect your attendance?

Step 3

Students MUST meet with each instructor to discuss the accommodation. This conversation must take place as soon as possible following the request, and well before the need to utilize the accommodation arises.

The following questions must be discussed with each instructor:

- Does the instructor have any concerns about the accommodation? If so what?
- Can any of the required participation be completed independently and/or made up outside of the classroom?
- Aside from the attendance policy stated on the course syllabus, how many additional classes can be missed without your grade being affected? In other words, “How much class is too much class to miss?”
- What happens if the student is able to attend the majority of the semester; however, in the last couple of weeks the student is unable to attend? Is an incomplete possible?
- How will the instructor prefer to be notified when the accommodation is needed?

If the accommodation cannot support specific curriculum requirements, it is imperative students gain an understanding of the maximum number of absences allowed/supported before absences are too numerous and interfere with the learning process, or preclude the instructor from adequate evaluation.
Students must contact AEC immediately regarding the appropriateness of this accommodation if concerns arise with instructors.

Your agreement to this E-Agreement is an understanding of the conditions and responsibilities pertaining to this accommodation.
