Political Science Program Learning Outcomes (PSPLOs):

Successful completion of this course satisfies the following Political Science Program Learning Outcomes:

- Breadth: Students should possess a broad knowledge of the theory and methods of the various branches of the discipline.
- Application and Disciplinary Methods: Students should be able to formulate research questions, engage in systematic literature searches using primary and secondary sources, evaluate research studies, and critically analyze and interpret influential political texts. Students should be able to apply these techniques to identify, understand, and analyze domestic and international political issues and organizations.
- Communication Skills: Students should master basic competencies in oral and written communication skills and be able to apply these skills in the context of political science. This means communicating effectively about politics and/or public administration, public policy, and law.
- Citizenship: Students should acquire an understanding of the role of the citizen in local, state, national, and global contexts and appreciate the importance of lifelong participation in political processes.

The Political Science subject guide is also a useful resource for finding library sources relevant to this class.

Workload and Credit Hour Requirements:

In accordance with SJSU policy, success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally 3 hours per unit per week with 1 of the hours used for lecture) for instruction or preparation/studying or course-related activities.

Term Paper:

Each student should research and write a paper on the topic of his/her choice related to our course material. This paper should not be an “overview” of an issue; it must take a clear position and defend it with data and arguments. It should be no less than 1000 words (about four pages, double-spaced). Early in the course, I will circulate a list of possible topic ideas; students may choose from the list or, even better, propose a different subject for approval. Deadlines associated with the term paper are listed in the course schedule below. Additionally, if you give me a week’s turnaround time, I am happy to review an early outline of your paper and provide feedback on its direction, with no impact on the grade. Top scores will be awarded to papers that have an interesting, challenging, and timely topic; persuasively argue a point of view; present the issue clearly; use outside reference materials correctly; and are well-organized and free of syntax, grammar, and typo errors. Maximum points possible: 100.

Midterm Exam:

The midterm exam will test students on the material covered in the first half of the course. The exam will consist of multiple-choice questions plus one short essay question. This is a strictly closed-note test, conducted on the honor system. Maximum points possible: 75.

Final Exam:

Here is SJSU's policy on final exams. The final exam will test students on material covered in the second half of the course. The exam will consist of multiple-choice questions plus one short essay question. This is a strictly closed-note test, conducted on the honor system. Maximum points possible: 75.

Short Writing Assignments:

During the course I will assign two short writing assignments on topics related to current events and/or material covered in our work. The length of each writing assignment may vary but generally won't exceed one page, single-spaced/two pages, double-spaced. Each assignment will have a turnaround time of at least one week. Maximum points possible: 50.

Class Preparation & Participation:

Throughout the course, I will post in-class pop questions and discussion boards on Canvas that are based on class-preparation activities and key points of previous class lectures/discussion. The questions are intended to encourage students to keep current with the reading and participate actively in class discussions, which are critical to success in the course. Point values will vary but will be low-stakes - and I will offer more opportunities than the maximum points possible so an occasional class (or question) can be missed over the course of the semester without penalty. Maximum points possible: 50.

Extra Credit:

There may be a limited number of small extra credit opportunities in this class (not to exceed about 30 points total for the duration of the course). If the occasion arises, all students will be given the opportunity to earn these points, which will be added to students' final point tallies. Details of these assignments, if offered, will be given in class and posted on Canvas.

Late Work and Make-Up Policies:

In an effort to be fair to all students, late work and exam absences will be handled as follows:

Term papers are considered on time if they are submitted to Canvas by the due date/time. Papers received after the deadline will be considered late and will be deducted 10 points (equivalent to one full grade) each day.

Short writing assignments are considered on time if they are submitted to Canvas by the due date/time. Assignments received after the deadline will be considered late and will be deducted two points each day.

If you face a serious illness that renders you unable to complete one or more of the written work assignments described above on time, you must notify me in writing before the assignment is due. Exceptions to this are only allowed in cases of documented medical emergency.

Students with a compelling need to reschedule the midterm or final exam must discuss this with me in advance and have the absence pre-approved - in which case we will agree on an alternate test date. Reasons that would merit a pre-approved absence are: a serious medical condition, religious holiday, pre-approved university-sanctioned event or activity, military orders, or family emergency. The only excuse for missing an exam without pre-approval is a documented medical emergency. With only these exceptions, a missed exam cannot be made up and will result in zero points. Please plan accordingly.

Class preparation & participation points cannot be made up or turned in late. As noted above, more than 50 points will be offered in order to allow an occasional missed answer without significant penalty.

Questions, concerns, or have a situation not addressed above? Please ask!

Classroom Protocol:

Although Zoom attendance per se cannot be a grading factor, students who prioritize attendance in this course will be at an advantage, because material covered in class will subsequently be tested in exams. Moreover, as noted above, pop questions will be given on Canvas - often during class time - in order to encourage students to stay current in the course reading and lectures/discussion, so those not present will be unlikely to earn those points.

I do not share my classroom slides but I will post a study guide for each main topic we discuss in class on Canvas. Students report that these are valuable study tools for exam prep and I hope you will agree.

Recording of Class and Public Sharing of Instructor Material:

Recording in this class is allowed only with my written permission, and will be granted only on a class-by-class basis if the student justifies the need to record the lectures. Students must obtain a written permission of any guest speaker and every class member in order to record presentations or class discussions. “Course material developed by the instructor is the intellectual property of the instructor and cannot be shared publicly without his/her approval. You may not publicly share or upload instructor generated material for this course such as exam questions, lecture notes, or homework solutions without instructor consent.”

Political Science Departmental Writing Policy:

Students of political science should develop the ability to write in clear, grammatical English. Spelling and grammar count! Students must take care that appropriate citations are used. Direct quotations must be so indicated with quotation marks and a specific reference to the page in the source from which it was taken. Failure to cite your sources constitutes academic misconduct, which carries serious sanctions. A tutorial on citations is available at the library website here. For assistance with writing, please see me or contact the Writing Center.

University Policies:

As a reminder, SJSU has policies on many important topics including attendance and academic integrity. If you have questions about any of this material, please ask.
