VERIFICATION OF TRANSLATION ACCURACY FORM

Please include this form with your IRB application if the submission includes translated documents and include this form when revisions of translated documents are submitted to the IRB. Investigators may translate documents, but may not verify the accuracy of the translation. The IRB does not require that a certified translator perform the document translation. The verification may be provided by anyone who has a college-level comprehension (speaking, reading, and writing) in the language. The person providing the verification does not have to have a degree in the language. This form must be completely filled out and signed by the individual providing the verification. A duplicate field is included if documents are submitted in more than one language. If more than two languages are used, submit an additional form.
