Course Description

URBP 223: Overview of the housing situation in the United States; examination of the theory of housing markets and framework for analyzing housing policies; in-depth study of the problem of affordable housing and critical examination of the steps that the public, private, and non-profit sectors have taken to alleviate the problem.

Course Overview

URBP 223 is a seminar style course that introduces students to critical aspects of U.S. housing policy and the economic theory of housing markets. The material is presented in a mostly chronological manner and aims to explain how U.S. housing policy became one of the foundations of racial inequality in the 20th century. It also covers past, current and emerging policy solutions aimed at remedying the impacts of policies that led to segregation by race and class in U.S. metropolitan areas.

Course Format

This course will be taught online via Zoom. The format of the course will consist of a brief lecture by the instructor aimed at introducing key facts, laws, historical context and introductory housing economics and policy analysis. This brief lecture will be followed by a student-led “critical case” (see description below) that reviews the week’s readings and provides a “real world” example of how the theories or policies introduced that week are put into practice. The remainder of the class will be devoted to class discussion. Active student involvement in discussion is essential to creating a productive learning environment. Students are welcome and encouraged to bring their own experience and backgrounds into the discussion.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLO)
Upon successful completion of this course, students will gain:

- A basic understanding of housing market dynamics including the drivers of supply and demand;
- A familiarity with how to use housing economics to evaluate proposed housing policies;
- Knowledge of the historical context and political factors that led to 20th century housing regulations, including mortgage rules and tax subsidies;
- A basis for understanding the role of race in shaping housing policy and ultimately segregation and structural inequality;
- An understanding of the major federal and local housing programs used to finance and develop affordable housing;
- An appreciation of how housing policy impacts neighborhoods, cities, and urban spatial structure in the US;
- And, an awareness of housing data sources and the ability to use data to describe current housing conditions and advocate for policy solutions.

Required Texts/Readings

Textbook

Other Readings
All other readings will be made available on the course website.

Other technology requirements
All students are required to have access to a computer which can access the internet.

Course Requirements and Assignments

Reading Responses: Students are expected to complete all required readings each week. As a mutual accountability mechanism, each student should post a reading response before class each week on the course website. The responses should critically summarize the each of the week’s readings and include an argument, angle, or comparison that allows the student to present their own ideas. While there is no required length, each post should cover all readings and should be no shorter than 500 words.

Critical Case Presentation: Each student is expected to prepare a “critical case” presentation during class at least once during the semester. The student will coordinate with the instructor before their assigned week to choose the case study and discuss the presentation medium (e.g. powerpoint). The student presenting that week is excused from the regular reading response post.
Attend a Public Meeting/Reflection Paper: As part of the engagement unit of this course. Students should attend an (online) public hearing on a state or local housing related issue. This could be a re-zoning hearing by a Planning Commission, or a legislative bill being debated at either the local or state level. Student can choose whichever meeting they like (as long as it is housing related) and are encouraged to contact the instructor for help. Students will then write a reflection paper that discusses the policy/project in question and the political and institutional context therein. (Approximately 5 pages). This is part of the engagement unit for this course.

Affordable Housing Data Profile: Students will use relevant housing data from the US Census and other state and local data sources to prepare a housing profile for a California city, country, or metropolitan region of their choice. This report will document the changes in housing supply and demand, measure the need for affordable housing by unit type, location and price level. This report will be approximately 5-10 pages and include accompanying data visualizations. This assignment is also part of the engagement unit for this course.

Research Paper: As the final evaluation for this paper, students will write a 15-20 page policy research paper on a housing related topic or program (e.g. housing vouchers, desegregation policies) and make specific policy recommendations for the same city/region they chose to profile in the previous assignment. The paper will be due on the day of the scheduled final exam for this class (December 9th at 11:59pm).

Grades for the course will be assigned based on your percentage of total points earned on all assignments according to the following distribution:
A plus = 100 to 96; A = 95 to 93 points; A minus = 92 to 90 points; B plus = 89 to 87 points; B = 86 to 84 points; B minus = 83 to 81 points; C plus = 80 to 78 points; C = 77 to 73 points; C minus = 72 to 70 points; D plus = 69 to 67 points; D = 66 to 63 points; D minus = 62 to 60 points; F = 59 points or lower

University Policies

Per University Policy S16-9 (http://www.sjsu.edu/senate/docs/S16-9.pdf), relevant university policy concerning all courses, such as student responsibilities, academic integrity, accommodations, dropping and adding, consent for recording of class, etc. and available student services (e.g. learning assistance, counseling, and other resources) are listed on Syllabus Information web page (http://www.sjsu.edu/gup/syllabusinfo), which is hosted by the Office of Undergraduate Education. Make sure to visit this page to review and be aware of these university policies and resources.
Recording Zoom Classes
This course or portions of this course (i.e., lectures, discussions, student presentations) will be recorded for instructional or educational purposes. The recordings will only be shared with students enrolled in the class through Canvas. The recordings will be deleted at the end of the semester. If, however, you would prefer to remain anonymous during these recordings, then please speak with the instructor about possible accommodations (e.g. temporarily turning off identifying information from the Zoom session, including student name and picture, prior to recording). Students are prohibited from recording course materials and/or distributing downloaded recordings outside of the class.

Land Acknowledgement
The San José State University community recognizes that the present-day Muwekma Ohlone Tribe, with an enrolled Bureau of Indian Affairs documented membership of over 550, is comprised of all of the known surviving American Indian lineages aboriginal to the San Francisco Bay region who trace their ancestry through the Missions Santa Clara, San José, and Dolores, during the advent of the Hispano-European empire into Alta California; and who are the successors and living members of the sovereign, historic, previously Federally Recognized Verona Band of Alameda County. The San José State University community also recognizes the importance of this land to the indigenous Muwekma Ohlone people of this region, and consistent with our principles of community and diversity strives to be good stewards on behalf of the Muwekma Ohlone Tribe whose land we occupy.

Citation style
It is important to properly cite any references you use in your assignments. The Department of Urban and Regional Planning uses Kate Turabian’s A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, 8th edition (University of Chicago Press, 2013, ISBN 780226816388). Copies are available in the SJSU MLK Library. Additionally, the book is relatively inexpensive, and you may wish to purchase a copy. Please note that Turabian’s book describes two systems for referencing materials: (1) “notes” (footnotes or endnotes), plus a corresponding bibliography, and (2) in-text parenthetical references, plus a corresponding reference list. The instructor prefers the latter.

Accommodation for Disabilities
If you need course adaptations or accommodations because of a disability, or if you need to make special arrangements in case the building must be evacuated, please make an appointment with me as soon as possible, or see me during office hours. Presidential Directive 97-03 at http://www.sjsu.edu/president/docs/directives/PD_1997-03.pdf requires that students with disabilities requesting accommodations must register with the Accessible Education Center (AEC) at http://www.sjsu.edu/aec to establish a record of their disability.

Library Liaison
The SJSU Library Liaison for the Urban and Regional Planning Department is Ms. Peggy Cabrera. If you have questions, you can contact her at Peggy.Cabrera@sjsu.edu or 408-808-2034.

SJSU Writing Center
The SJSU Writing Center is located in Clark Hall, Suite 126. All Writing Specialists have gone through a rigorous hiring process, and they are well trained to assist all students at all levels within all disciplines to become better writers. In addition to one-on-one tutoring services, the Writing Center also offers workshops every semester on a variety of writing topics. To make an appointment or to refer to the numerous online... resources offered through the Writing Center, visit the Writing Center website at http://www.sjsu.edu/writingcenter.

SJSU Counseling and Psychological Services
The SJSU Counseling and Psychological Services is located on the corner of 7th Street and San Fernando Street, in Room 201, Administration Building. Professional psychologists, social workers, and counselors are available to provide consultations on issues of student mental health, campus climate or psychological and academic issues on an individual, couple, or group basis.
