Course Catalog Description
URBP 250: Investigation of both the theory and practice of local public finance with emphasis on applications relevant to urban and regional planning. Topics include: public goals and externalities; the function of the budget; sources of revenue and expenditure; the planning programming-budgetary system (PPBS); methods of project evaluation; and traditional as well as innovative methods of public finance including property tax, user fee, impact fee, tax increment financing, and use of special districts.

URBP 150: An introduction to the theory and practice of municipal finance. Topics include public goals and externalities, the function of the budget, sources of revenues, finance tools, expenditure types, the planning programming-budgetary system (PPBS), and methods of project evaluation.

Course Format
Hybrid course. A mix of online instruction and in-person classes. Requires an electronic device, such as a computer, laptop or tablet, and internet connectivity that enables use of Zoom with video on. The weekly schedule notes the course modality for that week (on-line or in-person).

Course Description
Do you wonder how we pay for our roads, schools, libraries, and other public infrastructure and facilities? What are the traditional as well as innovative methods of financing public facilities, including land-value-capture-based finance tools? How can the method of funding such facilities impact urban development? How do we ensure that the planning and funding of facilities are coordinated? This course discusses these and other questions/issues related to public financing of urban infrastructure and services.

Financing of public facilities for an urban area is a very dynamic and complex process. The complexity arises, in part, because of the diversity of organizations involved in the decision-making processes, which are both political and technical in nature. Moreover, there is ever-increasing competition for limited funds, especially during budgetary cutbacks. In this course, we will first get introduced to the field of public finance with an overview of the government structure under which public financing works in the US. Next, we will discuss the normative theory of public finance. After that, we will examine public finance at the local government level. The discussion will include a study of the major sources of expenditure and revenue, the budgeting process, and the exploration of the links between budgeting and planning. Next, we will review two important evaluation tools used in public finance, namely, fiscal impact analysis and cost-benefit analysis. In the end, we will examine the traditional as well as the innovative public financing methods. These include property tax, sales tax, user fee, and land-value-capture tools such as impact fee, tax increment financing, special assessments district, joint development, and land pooling and reconstitution.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLOs)

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Identify and describe the budgetary process of a local jurisdiction;
2. Identify linkages (or lack thereof) between a local jurisdiction’s budgeting and planning processes;
3. Understand the role of short- and long-term debt in financing public infrastructure and services;
4. Critically evaluate the impact of various public finance tools on urban development; and
5. Use program evaluation tools like fiscal impact analysis and cost-benefit analysis

This course partially covers the following PAB Knowledge Components: 2A, 2C, 3B, 3E.

2A: Research: tools for assembling and analyzing ideas and information from prior practice and scholarship, and from primary and secondary sources.
3B: Equity, Diversity and Social Justice: key issues in equity, diversity, and social justice that emphasize planners’ role in expanding choice and opportunity for all persons, plan for the needs of the disadvantaged, reduce inequities through critical examination of past and current systems and disparities, and promote racial and economic integration.
3E: Governance and Participation: the roles of officials, stakeholders, and community members in planned change.

Course Requirements and Assignments

Success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities, including but not limited to internships, labs, and clinical practica. Other course structures will have equivalent workload expectations as described in the syllabus.

Your grade for the course will be based on the following assignments and other activities:

This class will be a combination of lectures by the instructor, in-class discussion, and presentations by the guest speakers. You have to read the assigned material prior to attending that week’s class and participate in class discussions. Additionally, you have to contribute one question per class that you would like to see discussed in the class. Such a question may also include clarifying a concept/part of the reading. This question is required for every class, except when there is a guest speaker presentation. Email the question to the instructor by Sunday night before the class with the subject line “First and Last Name: Class ‘x’ Question,” where “x” stands for the week of the class.

In-class discussion requires participation but, more importantly, thoughtful participation. You will not be assessed on the amount of participation per se, but rather your contribution to the course learning objectives and class discourse through insightful questions or comments.

Assignments 3 and 4 constitute the 1-unit engagement unit. For this unit, you will have to undertake additional activities outside the class hours such as attending public meetings related to the financing of infrastructure and services; writing memos critically analyzing the issues discussed in these public meetings; providing peer responses to such memos written by fellow students; and revising your memo based upon the peer responses. Details on how to complete these activities will be provided on handouts distributed in class later in the semester.
For the 1-unit engagement unit, the instructor will spend an additional 15 hours per semester on activities such as: designing the engagement unit activities and the related assignments, coordinating with community partners to implement the activities, advising students outside of class weekly as needed, and grading the engagement unit activity assignments.

Furthermore, you will have to write one term paper and present the paper's findings to the class. In the term paper, you will write a memo discussing the linkages between a city's general plan and other planning documents, capital improvement plan and other infrastructure plans, and budgets. URBP 150 and URBP 250 will have separate writing requirements for these papers.

These requirements and detailed guidelines about writing the papers will be provided later in the semester when the paper assignments are introduced. Finally, you will complete three take-home exercises. They will help you conduct fiscal impact analysis, cost-benefit calculation, and impact fee calculation.

Final Examination or Evaluation

Submission of Final Term Paper (Assignment 6) and “Course Reflection” are the culmination activities for this course.

Grading Information

The course grade consists of nine assignments (see above). If a student named “Joe” obtains 4 points on the first assignment, 5 on the second, 9 on the third, 14 on the fourth, 7 on the fifth, 28 on the sixth, 10 on the seventh, 5 on the eighth, and 5 on the ninth, his final letter grade would be calculated using the following steps:

a) Add the score for each assignment to arrive at the final score for the course.
   Final score = 4 plus 5 plus 9 plus 14 plus 7 plus 28 plus 10 plus 5 plus 5 = 87
b) The following grading scheme converts the final score into a letter grade.

A plus = 100 to 97
A = 96 to 94 points
A minus = 93 to 90 points
B plus = 89 to 87 points
B = 86 to 84 points
B minus = 83 to 81 points
C plus = 80 to 78 points
C = 77 to 75 points
C minus = 74 to 72 points
D plus = 71 to 69 points
D = 68 to 66 points
D minus = 65 to 63 points
F = 62 points or lower

c) Using the conversion scheme provided in step “b” the score of 87 equals a letter grade of “B plus.”

Classroom Protocol

This class is primarily run as a seminar to foster critical thinking in the complex world of urban public finance. As such, it is expected that students attend each class, be on time, complete the assigned readings before each class, and actively participate in discussions with an open mind. If you cannot attend a class, please notify the instructor in advance. Lectures by the instructor and/or guest experts will supplement class discussions.

We live in a 24/7 connected world. However, please do not text, tweet, surf, and anything else you can do on an electronic device unless it is for taking notes or looking up information relevant to the discussion at hand. Phones must be off or on silent.

University Policies

Per University Policy S16-9, relevant university policy concerning all courses, such as student responsibilities, academic integrity, accommodations, dropping and adding, consent for recording of class, etc. and available student services (e.g. learning assistance, counseling, and other resources) are listed on Syllabus Information web page (https://www.sjsu.edu/curriculum/courses/syllabus-info.php). Make sure to visit this page to review and be aware of these university policies and resources.

Plagiarism and Citing Sources Properly

Plagiarism is the use of someone else's language, images, data, or ideas without proper attribution. It is a very serious offense both in the university and in your professional work. In essence, plagiarism is both theft and lying: you have stolen someone else's ideas, and then lied by implying that they are your own.

Plagiarism will lead to grade penalties and a record filed with the Office of Student Conduct and Ethical Development. In severe cases, students may also fail the course or even be expelled from the university.

If you are unsure what constitutes plagiarism, it is your responsibility to make sure you clarify the issues before you hand in draft or final work.

Learning when to cite a source and when not to is an art, not a science. However, here are some common examples of plagiarism that you should be careful to avoid:

- Using a sentence (or even a part of a sentence) that someone else wrote without identifying the language as a quote by putting the text in quote marks and referencing the source.
- Paraphrasing somebody else's theory or idea without referencing the source.
- Using a picture or table from a webpage or book without reference the source.
- Using data some other person or organization has collected without referencing the source.

The University of Indiana has developed a very helpful website with concrete examples about proper paraphrasing and quotation. See in particular the following page: https://plagiarism.iu.edu/overview/index.html

If you still have questions, feel free to talk to the instructor. There is nothing wrong with asking for help, whereas even unintentional plagiarism is a serious offense.

Citation style

It is important to cite any references you use in your assignments correctly. The Department of Urban and Regional Planning uses Kate Turabian’s A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, Ninth Edition (University of Chicago Press, 2016, ISBN 978-0226430577). Copies of older editions might be available in the SJSU King Library, which you can use. Additionally, the book is relatively inexpensive, and you may wish to purchase a copy. Please note that Turabian’s book describes two systems for referencing materials: (1) “notes” (footnotes or endnotes), plus a corresponding bibliography, and (2) in-text parenthetical references, plus a corresponding reference list. The instructor prefers the latter.
